Tips for a Successful Event

Welcome to The MBA Tour event! To assist you in taking full advantage of this program, we have provided some helpful tips for you to consider as you participate in workshops and meet with business school representatives. This event is meant to be informative and enjoyable for everyone; we hope these suggestions will help you as you learn more about the different MBA options that exist around the world!

Tip: Use this guide to learn more about each school's profile. Examples of information contained in this brochure include:

- GMAT range
- Minimum TOEFL score
- % of international students
- Average age and years of work experience
- Length of program
- Application deadlines
- Tuition and fees
- Financial aid options
- Distinguishing facts about each program

Tip: Confirm the times and location of special sessions and try to attend before they fill up. Having immediate access to admissions directors and alumni can be very helpful in answering your questions, so try not to miss these informative events!

Tip: Try to visit with each of the schools that are participating in this event. Admissions directors want to meet you and learn more about your MBA interests and goals. The more you know about your options, the easier it will be to make the decision that is best for you!

Tip: Try and do a little advance research on those schools you want to meet the most at the fair. Even if you are unable to learn anything about these programs ahead of time, use your time with the admissions director to ask those questions that you won't find the answers to either in this guide or on the schools' web sites.

Examples of questions to ask school representatives include:

- What is a typical day like for students at your school?
- How accessible are faculty members to students?
- Are there opportunities for students to get involved in research projects with faculty members?
- How active is the Career Services Office in helping students find internships and jobs?
- What sorts of activities exist for the spouses and partners of your current students?
- How active is the alumni network?
- What is your city or town like?
- What makes an applicant to your program successful?

Tip: The fairs can be very busy, especially at the beginning of the event. To ensure that you will be able to talk with the business school programs that interest you the most, locate where they are in the fair room and watch for a time when their table isn't so crowded.

Tip: Try to be patient while you await your turn to speak to the school representative. Listen to the questions that other prospective students ask of the school reps. You may get some good information that you hadn't thought to ask!

Tip: Please be mindful that your peers are awaiting a school representative or alumni's attention. Avoid asking several questions in succession. If you are interested in a school and would like to continue conversing with program representatives, ask for a brochure or a business card. Admissions directors welcome emails from interested candidates and would be happy to answer any of your follow up questions after the fair!

Tip: Most of all, enjoy the fair! Learn as much as you can about the many options for MBA study so that you can pick the program that is right for you!
